Europeans Make Final Peace Bid

New Fires Scorch Algiers In Secret Army Campaign

ALGIERS (AP) — New fires broke out in Algiers in the European Secret Army Organization's scorched earth campaign today even as Europeans were reported making a final compromise peace bid to Moslem nationalists.

Word of the peace contact came as a surprise. The secret army said in ordering a new campaign of destruction Thursday that secret contacts with the Moslems had failed.

Few believed the Moslems would agree to the secret army demands for additional guarantees for Algeria's European minority. But well-informed sources in Paris said an all-night session in Rocher Noir, the Algerian administrative capital, brought the possibility of a Moslem amnesty for the secret army when Algeria becomes independent.

Europeans want to be represented in the Moslem security force being created, too, but this demand was turned down flatly by Moslems, it was reported.

Taking part in the talks were Belkacem Krim, deputy premier of the nationalist regime, Abdelrahmanes Fares, president of the Algerian provisional executive, and representatives of Algeria's European community, led by former Algiers Mayor Jacques Chevaller.

Paris informants said the European representatives conveyed the latest secret army proposal to the Moslems. Officials indicated any answer would come soon. They also hinted that Jean-Jacques Susini, believed to represent the moderate faction in the secret army, had made direct contact with Moslem leaders.

The Paris sources said the Moslem nationalists would not budge from the position that "not a single comma of the Evian accords" ending the Algerian rebellion would be changed.

But the question of amnesty, the informants said, is within the framework of a possible accord.

In return for a general amnesty, the secret army would halt its scorched earth policy aimed at destruction of buildings and facilities the Moslems will inherit when they achieve independence.

Spirals of smoke rose over Algiers as the European and Moslem spokesmen conferred. Arson commandos set fire to two gas stations in the Chateaufort suburb and burned another store in town. Secret army commandos shuttered Algiers' massive City Hall with explosives Friday night, hours after heavily damaging a municipal hospital and wrecking a big power dam installation.

Police said the City Hall blast killed one soldier and wounded 43 others. Newsmen reported seeing at least four dead being carried from the building, and one report said six persons were killed.

Teams of secret army gunmen attacked Moslem auxiliary policemen and French gendarmes during the night. Police picked up the bodies of two Europeans.

European terrorists also struck in France, wounding five Moslems and two Africans in machine gun attacks on two Paris area bars Friday.

At Sidi Bel Abbes, Foreign Legion headquarters in western Algeria, one European and three Moslems were killed late Friday in a fight.

Crowds of Europeans gathered outside battered Algiers City Hall to see if they could still get passports and birth certificates needed for flight to France.

20 Others Wounded In Attack

Armored Column Is Overwhelmed 30 Miles From Saigon

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A strong band of Red guerrillas struck only 30 miles north of Saigon today, overwhelming an armored column and killing two U.S. officers and 15 Vietnamese.

South Vietnamese troops supported by a U.S. helicopter, went in pursuit of the Viet Cong guerrillas, believed to number from 300 to 400 men. But chances of finding the attackers in the jungles appeared slim.

U.S. sources said no one in the convoy escaped injury. They said the number of wounded was probably more than 20.

Armed with heavy machine guns and recoilless rifles, the Viet Cong ambushed the armored column near the village of Ben Cat.

Military sources said the officers, a captain and a lieutenant, were members of the U.S. Military Advisory Assistance Group in South Viet Nam. Their names were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

A U.S. Army sergeant was killed by Red guerrillas in an action in Central Viet Nam's thick forests earlier this week. The latest deaths bring to six the number of U.S. servicemen killed in combat here since the United States increased its aid to President Ngo Dinh Diem's forces last December.

A relief column of South Vietnamese troops was dispatched to the scene of today's ambush as soon as word of the attack was received but the column was slowed by a Viet Cong road block, the informants said.

When reinforcements reached the ambush area, they found three vehicles on fire and the bodies of the American officers. South Vietnamese troops launched a search of the area.

Meanwhile 30 American-piloted helicopters were supporting 800 government troops in an operation launched Friday in Communist infested territory about 35 miles north of the capital.

Military sources said today the operation was continuing, but gave no details.

First reports Friday said there had been no government or American casualties except for an Army H21 helicopter forced down by engine trouble. The crew destroyed it.

WILLARD, Ohio (AP)—A car-truck collision at the Ohio 13 and U.S. 224 intersection 13 miles east of here killed a Columbus man and woman today and critically injured two other Columbus persons.

At Myers funeral home in Greenwich, the dead were identified as Miss Norma Summers, 21, of 865 Denton Alley, and George E. Seymour, 28, of 695 South Sixth St. In Memorial Hospital here with critical injuries are Miss Mary Summers, 18, a sister of Norma, and W. T. Smith, 24, of Oak Trail, er Park.

The State Highway Patrol said a car driven by Seymour and headed north on Ohio 13 ran underneath the truck, which was traveling east of U.S. 224. James P. Morgan, about 45, of Newark, driving the truck owned by the B.&L. Freight Lines of Newark, was unhurt.

South Korea's Pro-Western Premier Quits

'Personal Reasons' Given; One Aide Also Resigns Post

SEOUL (AP) — Pro-Western Premier Song Yo-Chan quit his post today and South Korea's military government announced the resignation had been accepted.

A statement by the ruling junta also announced acceptance of the resignation of Finance minister Chun Byung-Kyu.

The rest of the cabinet ministers had said they were stepping down, too, but the junta's announcement mentioned only Song and Chun.

The junta statement said the premier and finance minister had resigned for "personal reasons." There have been reports that Song and Chun had been in sharp disagreement over economic policy, one of the toughest issues the military government has faced.

The junta issued its announcement after an emergency meeting under strongman Gen. Chung Hee Park.

General Park, boss of the military government, said he was "extremely sorry" Song had resigned. He said Song had made a "great contribution" to the nation during the past year, a time when South Korea "was faced with one of its most difficult periods."

Park added that he hoped Song would continue to advise on the "path of the revolutionary government."

$5 Million Tax Cut Urged By UAW Head

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fresh from a discussion of the economic situation with President Kennedy, union leader Walter Reuther has called again for a $5 billion tax cut in lower and middle incomes.

Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers and vice president of the AFL-CIO, told reporters at the White House Friday that a tax cut in these income brackets would release "high velocity purchasing power and give the country a real economic thrust."

He added: "If we go much lower in steel production, we will have as much idle capacity in this country as the Soviet Union has capacity in production."

50,000 Idled

Ford, Union Set New Talks Today

DETROIT (AP) — Union bargainers were expected to return to the Ford Motor Co. office today for talks which could decide when more than 50,000 Ford employees across the nation can go back to work.

The firm stopped the last of its auto assembly operations Friday because, Ford said, an Ohio strike has choked off the supply of hoods, doors, roofs and other parts.

Ford, the nation's second largest auto manufacturing empire, blamed the closures on a strike at Ford's Walton Hills stamping plant near Cleveland which began eight days ago.

The plant was one of the last to settle local grievances during national negotiations between Ford and the United Auto Workers on a three-year contract last fall. The new dispute is over work quotas.

At the close of work Friday, all 16 Ford assembly units were shut. A battery manufacturing plant had been closed earlier.

Monday, 1,000 workers at Ford's glass plant in Nashville, Tenn., will be out of work because of a partial shutdown there. Another 1,000 will be kept on to keep furnaces going and attend other duties, a Ford spokesman here said.

Also effective Monday, metal stamping plants at Buffalo, Chicago, Dearborn and Monroe, Mich. will lay off 10,000 employees.

Five Ford truck manufacturing and assembly plants will continue operating under present plans, the Ford office said.

Henry Ford II said more manufacturing plants will be closed due to lack of space for stockpiling if the Ohio stoppage continues.

Reports from the talks Friday varied. One union spokesman said only one strike issue remained unsettled, but a management spokesman said the UAW added 41 additional grievances to the three disagreements over production quotas which were basic the June 6 walkout.

New Cold War Move July 9

Kremlin Set To Launch Major Propaganda Drive

By WILLIAM L. RYAN AP Special Correspondent

The Kremlin is readying a major propaganda offensive. It will be launched July 9 in Moscow when a "World Congress for General Disarmament and Peace" opens under sponsorship of the Moscow-directed World Peace Council.

World Peace Council conferences have been going on since the immediate postwar years. Each meeting has been the forerunner of a new Soviet cold war move. It is reasonable to suppose the forthcoming meeting will have similar results.

The council says the congress will attract representatives from 100 countries around the world. Most are run-of-the-mill Communists and fellow travelers. Many will be Communist-leaning artists, writers, professional people, public figures.

Meetings like the one scheduled have preceded such actions as the Berlin blockade, the Korean invasion and other major moves. In 1958, a peace council drive was a prelude to Premier Khrushchev's sudden offensive against West Berlin.

Such operations often have double purposes. Frequently a propaganda drive is used to obscure trouble on the home front. The Soviet people, paying 30 per cent more for meat and butter, have been told they must live with the idea of nagging shortages because of agricultural failures. Food shortages plague the rest of the Communist bloc.

Indications are ample in the Soviet press that the food price hikes were a bitter pill for the Soviet public after years of hoping for abundance. Apart from violent daily propaganda against U.S. "atomchiks" and American

Safety Lights Due LaCroft School Area

More Flashers Put Up At Yellow Creek Rts. 7-213 Junction

Crews from the Columbus office of the State Highway Department are slated to begin work Monday on installation of traffic safety lights on State Route 267 (Lisbon St.) near the LaCroft School.

William P. McKenna, deputy director of the Division 11 office in New Philadelphia, said an overhead traffic signal light will be installed at the point where Densmore Ave. junctions with State Route 267.

In addition, "walk and wait" safety signs will also be erected on pedestals along the curb for benefit of pedestrians, including school children. The lights will be installed about 1,000 feet north of the city line.

Meanwhile, the department has erected additional traffic safety lights at the Yellow Creek junction of Routes 7 and 213, and a warning light at the entrance of the Titanium Metals Corp. in Toronto.

Crews installed five flashing lights on suspended cables at Yellow Creek, with four the yellow flashing type, and one a red flashing stop light for motorists driving onto Route 7 from Route 213.

There is one overhead yellow flashing light for each lane of the super-highway strip. Overhead directional signs have been installed for motorists approaching the junction from the south. Other di-

Sun Shines On Picnic; Weekend To Be Fair

The Ohio weatherman extended the glad hand to the vanguard of potters and their families at Meyers Lake Park in Canton today for the 34th annual IBOP picnic.

Sunny skies greeted the first arrivals as the outing got under way before noon for a crowded program to last through the evening.

The forecast was sunny and warmer today and fair and continued warm tonight and Sunday. The Ohio Valley had a fog blanket this morning as the temperature fell to the mid-50's. The day's high range will be 80 to 86 degrees and tonight's low 58 to 64.

Decision Due On Kennedy Proposal

Plane Union Keeps Threat Of Strike Over 3 Airlines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Flight engineers kept a mid-afternoon strike threat hanging today over three airlines — Pan American, Eastern and Trans World.

The choice facing the union—the Flight Engineers International Association, AFL-CIO — still appeared to be whether to stage a walkout in face of President Kennedy's stern warning against one, or to accept Kennedy's arbitration proposal.

The 1,700 engineers have twice rejected Kennedy's settlement formula, agreeing to arbitrate all issues except the key one—a controversy over manning jet planes.

A strike on the three airlines would ground 40 per cent of the nation's commercial airline service, amounting to an average of 60,000 domestic and 20,000 international passengers daily.

Eastern is a key north-south carrier along the east coast, TWA operates transcontinental and overseas flights, while Pan American is the nation's major foreign carrier.

Kennedy, blasting the flight engineers for adamanity in government settlement efforts, warned the union in his news conference Thursday that a strike would do great harm to the nation's economy and welfare. He implied drastic steps to halt a walkout if it began.

The President urged the union, a small labor organization with only 3,000 members, to reconsider a White House proposal that the union had rejected. This was to submit all issues to arbitration, a decision by outside neutrals.

Brown's reply Friday was what it had been before—that the union's branches on Pan America and Eastern were willing to arbitrate pay and other contract issues, but not the union's demand that its members be retained for one of the jet cockpit jobs when present four - man crews are cut to three.

So far as the union's membership on TWA is concerned, no sort of arbitration is acceptable.

The three airlines have said they will go along with the full arbitration Kennedy has proposed.

2nd Reading Due On 2 Bills At Council

Council is scheduled to give second reading Monday night to two controversial pieces of legislation which moved through first reading by split votes at the session June 4.

There was a 4-3 split two weeks ago on legislation that would allow the Board of Public Utilities to assess quarterly sewage charges on "improved" properties that front on city sewer lines, whether or not they're actually connected to the mains.

The split was 5-2 on an amended appropriation ordinance providing $3,880 to make the final payment to the Tri-State Asphalt Corp. for sealcoating a series of blacktop streets in 1961.

Councilmen Frank Duffy, Floyd Murray and Edward Massey, the three Democratic members, voted against extending the sewage charges. Murray and Duffy also opposed the appropriation amendment. The same ordinance contains a $1,500 item for sealcoating roads and the parking lot at Thompson Park this season.

Both pieces of legislation were supported by the four Republicans, Councilmen George E. Willshaw, Robert W. Sample Jr., S. James Welch and Kenneth C. Berg. Massey joined the Republicans in voting for the appropriation amendment.

Unless the vote lineup changes in the meantime, each piece of legislation will require a third reading for final enactment, which would come July 2.

Council also is scheduled to consider an ordinance authorizing Safety - Service Director Robert Owen to sign a contract for repayment to the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency of funds which it advanced in the late 1940's for preparation of plans for a series of street and sewer improvements.

The current appropriation ordinance provides a $2,000 item to be applied on the debt. The legislation provides for annual pay-

Corak Retains Party's Chair

Beaver's Democrats Return Midlander

Mayor Eli G. Corak of Midland was retained as chairman of the Beaver County Democratic Committee at an election Friday at the IBEW union hall in Vanport.

Other officers were also re-elected during the unusually quiet and harmonious meeting. They are Mrs. Lois Wood of Beaver Falls, vice chairman, and James G. Camp of Rochester, treasurer. The secretary post, held by Atty. Robert Masters of Midland, is appointed by the chairman.

Corak was elected by the committee Aug. 31, 1960, to complete the two-year term of George Werner of Freedom, who resigned.

Corak was nominated yesterday by Floree Aquino of Ambridge. Mrs. Wood was nominated by Mrs. Anna Mae Dugan of Racoon Township and Camp by Edward Baer of Rochester.

There were 202 committeemen present, or their proxy, out of a possible 242. The election was reported "harmonious compared to other Democratic sessions," a spokesman said.

Corak, re-elected last November to a third term as Midland mayor, is also a county commissioner, a post to which was appointed after the death of Commissioner Gordon Camp in a plane crash May 12, 1961.

U.S. Agents Arrest 11 On Bet Stamp Charge

CINCINNATI (AP) — Raids on suspected handbook operations in four Ohio cities Friday brought arrest of 11 persons by Internal Revenue Service agents.

All were charged with failure to have the required $50 federal wagering stamp. Agents said they found handbook equipment at all the places raided.

IRS agents made five arrests at Dayton, four at Zanesville and one each at Somerset and Cheviot.

Youth Draws $200 Fine In Whisky Sale

A Chester youth charged with selling alcohol to a minor was fined $200 and costs, and another youth arrested in connection with the incident, was given a suspended six-month jail sentence following a lengthy hearing Friday before Squire John D. Heron in New Cumberland.

Squire Herron fined James Dennis, 19, who pleaded innocent of a charge filed by Hancock County sheriff's deputies of selling alcohol to a young boy from Chester at the Laurel Hill Tavern, which is operated by the defendant's father, Earl Dennis, licensee.

Squire Herron said that testimony brought out that Dennis had sold liquor to Larry Jarvis, 18, and a 16-year-old boy, also from Chester.

Jarvis then purchased beer for three 15-year-old boys who were waiting in a car, Squire Herron said.

Jarvis was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor and placed on probation for six months in addition to receiving the suspended jail term.

The complaint was filed by John Grossi, county probation officer.

Squire Herron continued until Friday at 11 a.m. a hearing for Mike Milenissis of George's Restaurant on a charge of selling beer to a minor.

Mexico Looks Ahead To Kennedy's Visit

Gilbert Hopes To Pay Back $2 Million

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—Edward M. Gilbert, the New York financier who made unauthorized withdrawals of $2 million from his company and then flew to Brazil, says he hopes "to pay everybody back and make everything whole some day."

But he admitted he does not know how he would be able to do it, the Brazil Herald reported today.

Gilbert, 38, flew to extradition-proof Brazil from New York last Wednesday after admitting the unauthorized withdrawals from the E.L. Bruce Co., the firm he headed.

He told the Brazil Herald he withdrew the funds to protect both himself and the company and that in subsequently coming to Rio he was "not fleeing United States justice."

Gilbert said he had intended to return to New York Friday night but decided against it after talking by telephone with his father and a lawyer in New York. He said he would be "crucified" if he went home now.

The Herald said Gilbert denied having contacted Jorge Chalape Sobrinho, the Brazilian lawyer for two fugitive American financiers who took refuge in Brazil from business fraud charges in the United States.

The lawyer said Friday Gilbert was his client and he was taking legal action to prevent any possibility of Gilbert's arrest or deportation.

Gilbert said he needs time to think before making any decision on returning to New York, where the district attorney's office and the U.S. Securities Exchange Commission are looking into his affairs.

"Since 'Blue Monday' on Wall Street, I've been all confused and now I want to think things over with no outside pressure," he said. "I did nothing to hurt anybody intentionally, although a lot of people did get hurt after things got out of control."

He apparently was referring to the May 28 "Blue Monday" stock market plunge — about the same time he made the withdrawals.

"I withdrew the funds not for myself alone," he continued. "I did it to protect the position of both E. L. Bruce Co. and myself."

Named Commander

City Native Appointed As Coast Guard Head

An East Liverpool native has been named commander of the Coast Guard unit at Sewickley, home port of the Cutter Forsythia which is assigned to the Ohio River area from Pittsburgh to Ravenswood, W. Va.

Chief Boatswain Wayne H. Wiley, 37, was transferred from the Coast Guard unit at Owensboro, Ky. He was also commanding officer there.

Born in Richmond in Jefferson County, he resided as a youth in the vicinity of Campground Rd. and attended school in Glenmoor for two years, later enlisting in the Navy.

The Forsythia, 113 feet, 9 inches long overall, is a buoy tender designed for use on the western rivers, doubling as a search and rescue craft. It was commissioned in 1942.

In addition to the Ohio River, the ship is also assigned to the Monongahela River from Pittsburgh to Fairmont, W. Va., and the Allegheny River from Pittsburgh to East Brady, Pa. The ship's home port since commissioning has been Sewickley.

Cmdr. Wiley joined the Coast Guard in 1947 and his service includes a tour at the Coast Guard training station at Groton, Conn. He had been commander of the Owensboro post since 1959.

WAYNE WILEY
Transferred From Kentucky.

The officer is married to the former Miss Twila M. Flanagan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Flanagan of Harvard Ave., Glenmoor. The couple has one son.

Canada Waits Vote Monday

OTTAWA (AP)—Canada's hard-fought election campaign ends today amid indications the outcome will be decided mainly on economic issues which touched off fireworks in the contest between Conservatives and Liberals.

Unemployment and devaluation of the Canadian dollar were the issues hit hardest by Conservative Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson in the closing hours of the race which will be decided at the polls Monday.

Pearson, winding up his travels in Ottawa, claimed the prime minister's predictions of full employment were a "cruel hoax." He contended that devaluation of the dollar would raise prices on goods bought by Canadians.

Diefenbaker argued that Canada's economic condition is healthy and that the Liberals were trying to get into office on a "gloom and doom" policy. He concludes his campaign in his home town of Prince Albert, Sask.

All signs continued to point to a close election, with the two splinter parties—the New Democratic party and the Social Credit party—possibly picking up enough seats to hold the balance of power in the House of Commons.

Both Diefenbaker and Pearson continued to insist their parties will win a clear majority of the 264 seats to be filled. Public opinion polls and surveys are divided.

Failure of any party to get a clear majority probably would result in a new election within less than a year.

In Canada—as in England—the voters do not ballot directly for the party leaders but only for their own local candidates for the House of Commons. The leader of the winning party becomes prime minister and forms the government. The government may call a new election at any time up to a maximum of five years after it takes office.

2 Slightly Injured In Small Plane Crash debris, said the Secret Army had planted an estimated 200 pounds of explosives in the city hall weeks before a company of the Ninth Zouave Regiment moved in to guard the building.

They said the charges apparently were set off by someone who had only to saunter into the building, light the fuses and walk away. Police feared charges are planted in other facilities throughout the territory.

The Secret Army command in Algiers proclaimed an all-out offensive of destruction to begin last Thursday midnight. In the first 24 hours it sprang through the territory. European terrorists in the west threatened even greater destructive efforts.

Terrorists blew up three surgical pavilions and the modernistic laboratory of the 2,500-bed Mustapha Hospital, setting off two hours of chaos and panic. No one was injured, but officials feared the $100,000 damage could not be repaired under present conditions.

Other Secret Army agents struck 100 miles to the east, blowing up the control installations of the Darguina Dam, a major supplier of power for Algiers. Officials said repairs would take 8 to 10 months.

In Side Bel Abbes, historic home of the French Foreign Legion, six grade schools and a high school were burned.

Europeans fleeing the territory by the thousands heeded Secret Army orders to burn everything that might be of use to the Moslems. Stores and office buildings were burned to the ground in scattered parts of Algiers. Automobiles were set afire in the streets where they were abandoned. Even household furniture went up in smoke.

Secret Army commandos armed with automatic weapons attacked a police encampment in Oran, wounding six persons. Other terrorist attacks killed four persons there.

rectional signs will be installed for south-bound motorists whenever the materials are available, McKenna said.

The department also plans to install two flashing signs along Route 7, indicating a "third lane" along the super-highway for motorists turning onto Route 213, and also signs indicating that the junction is located in a "fog area."

A flashing warning amber light was installed on suspended cables Thursday or Route 7 at the entrance of the Titanium plant in Toronto. The company paid for the cost of the flashing light, the director reported. It insures greater safety for employees who use the firm's parking lot.

In reply to a question on the status of a proposal to relocate Route 7 in Wellsville, McKenna said that "The project is still on the highway department's five-year program."

"The department is hoping that the city of Wellsville will be able to see its way clear to authorize engineering work necessary for the project to begin," McKenna said.

"The most recent information in the division is a five-year-old engineering report. The engineers do not think the final location should proceed on information that may be outdated," he said. "Therefore," McKenna continued, "the department has told city officials in Wellsville that if they authorize the highway director to hire a consulting engineer to up-date the report, they will then be in a position to consult with the engineers and the highway department as to the final location of Route 7."

Man Who Fled Crash Will Make Report

William Jarrett, 1230 Chaffin St., identified as the motorist who fled on foot after his auto struck two parked cars early Friday morning on Erie St., is scheduled to report to police headquarters Monday, Chief Americo Radeschi said today.

The chief said Jarrett is scheduled to meet with Patrolman Jerry F. Adkins, who investigated the crash. Jarrett appeared at headquarters yesterday, but Adkins wasn't available, he added. Abandoned at the scene, 40 feet east of Central Ave., the car was registered in Jarrett's name. The driver was observed fleeing on foot after he apparently struck the parked 1954 sedan of Albert H. Douglas, 1222 Erie St., and then backed into the parked 1953 sedan owned by William Tynes, 1213 Erie St., police said.

Space System Plan Rapped

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's plan to provide for private ownership of a vast communications system in space has run into brisk fire from Democratic senators who want the government to own it.

The Senate Democratic leader, Mike Mansfield of Montana, said Friday he expects debate on the issue will take up much of the Senate's time next week.

He added that it may be necessary to shunt the bill aside now and then so the Senate can act on other legislation, including extension of the corporate and excise taxes.

The bill, backed by the administration, would create a private corporation to own and operate the American share of a proposed global satellite relay system. A similar measure has been approved by the House.

Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., and other critics of the measure contend the plan "would be a gigantic giveaway" of millions of taxpayers' dollars invested in space research.

Kefauver and six other Democrats have introduced 33 amendments to the bill, including one complete substitute providing for government ownership. Under this proposal, a communications satellite authority, similar to the Tennessee Valley Authority, would be set up to develop the communications system.

ments of $2,000 until the total of about $20,000 is made good.

The city's agreement with the federal government provided the planning funds would be repaid if the municipality undertook the improvement projects, or a part of them. The government claims the amount became due in recent years when the city accomplished segments of several projects that had been planned with federal funds.

Calcutta Woman Injured In Crash

Mrs. Linda Wymer, 22, of Calcutta R.D. is in "fair" condition at City Hospital with a forehead laceration received when a car in which she was a passenger crashed into a utility pole on Carolina Ave. at 8th St. in Chester early today.

William J. Miller, 22, of 5th St., Wellsville, the driver, was released after treatment for contusions and abrasions of the left arm.

Patrolman Clarence Lennens, who investigated the accident, which occurred about 1:45 a.m., said the 1955 auto was demolished when it struck a utility pole at Chaney's service station after descending the Chester Hill at Rock Springs Park.

Miller posted a $15.50 bond for a hearing Monday night at 7 before Mayor Ray Collins on a charge of failing to have his vehicle under control.

All this may be part of a campaign to make the Soviet people feel better about their own economic troubles. They are told their government is working hard for peace, the only solution to their problems.

The Presidency Is Changing

For the next few weeks while representatives and senators set up strategy for the November elections there will be a series of bulletins about the status of the Kennedy administration's legislative proposals.

This is the way the public is supposed to keep score on the prestige of an administration. If most of its important proposals are moving along well in Congress, the score is high. Otherwise, the score is low. The Kennedy administration's score is low.

Even the defense bill, whooped through with no dissent, was a setback for the administration because it included more money than the Kennedy budget-makers had asked for. Congress has been paying scant attention to the Kennedy administration's desires.

It is well to remember, however, that except for the war years Congress has been paying scant attention to the desires of all administrations since the first New Deal ran out of gas in the late '30s. Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman tried to go over the heads of legislators to win support from the people. Dwight Eisenhower made some moves in that direction. John Kennedy also tried it with his "medicare" proposal when he addressed a specially assembled audience of oldsters in New York City.

IT NEVER has worked after the first New Deal ran out of gas. And that happened when Mr. Roosevelt tried to purge the Democratic party after losing his fight to pack the U.S. Supreme Court. Congress never has knuckled under to executive decrees since then and clearly is in no mood to knuckle under now to an executive who squeezed into office by a squeaker in 1960.

Even if Mr. Kennedy had gone into office with the equivalent of either the Eisenhower landslide he still wouldn't be able to dominate Congress, despite large nominal majorities of Democrats in both houses. He could no more command them to do his bidding than his two Democratic predecessors could. One of the 20th century ironies of the two-party system was the fact that Mr. Eisenhower had more luck with Democrats in Congress than Roosevelt, Truman, or even Woodrow Wilson.

He did not dominate Congress or try to, which perhaps accounted for his success. The House and the Senate always have been jealous of their prerogatives as co-equal units of a co-equal branch of the federal government and lately have been feeling more co-equal than usual. No one is in a position to dominate them.

THIS ACCOUNTS for a deepening impression that the presidency is changing; that the personal domination by strong chief executives isn't likely to be repeated. Indeed there may be a question whether their domination ever was what it was made to seem to be by their admirers and detractors.

Today it is not even made to seem to be a prime factor in government. A president is openly defied, despite techniques of executive pressure and persuasion that must be more elaborate and costlier than anything ever dreamed of in the past.

President Kennedy may go through this entire session of Congress without getting anything he wants, or at least anything he has asked for. The reflection, if it happened, would not be in his disfavor so much as it would be in disfavor of the idea that the chief executive of the United States runs the country.

In the new pattern of the presidency, the executive runs the executive department, and that's the limit of his influence.

'A Good Time . . .'

The potters are picnicking today at Meyers Lake Park in Canton.

It's an annual event which draws workers from the far-flung locals of the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters. Most everyone comes early and most everyone stays late.

There are picnics and there are picnics. But to those connected with the trade there's something extra special about a potters' picnic.

We feel sure today's event will wind up appropriately with "a good time was had by all".

Up To Par On Streets?

To residents of a city with possibly the largest total of dirt streets among Ohio communities of similar size, a plan for a surfacing program for such roadways should come as a most welcome proposal.

Council is contemplating a triple asphalt surfacing project for most of East Liverpool's dirt street at a cost estimated to be less than 50 cents a front foot.

Should this project receive final approval of the lawmakers — under one of a number of financing methods being weighed — and should this covering material meet engineering requirements the city will have made a major stride in catching up to modern street standards.

According to Ohio Highway Department figures, Ashtabula has 81 miles of paved streets and 12 miles of earth streets, Chillicothe has 74 miles of paved and 2.3 miles of earth streets, Tiffin has 65 miles of paved and 1.7 miles of earth streets, and East Liverpool has 38.68 miles of paved, 17.6 miles of earth and three miles of gravel or stone streets.

Dusty dirt roadways are bothersome to housewives, turn into muddy ruts and holes which plague pedestrians and motorists alike, keep real estate values of a neighborhood depressed and act as a detracting factor to community appearance and economic growth.

Nothing There

At last the fabulous pup and I are looking at each other with a mellow light of understanding in our eyes. My eyes more than hers, I hasten to say, because she always did understand me but only recently have I begun to understand her because I finally have understood me.

About the digging, I mean.

Ever since the weather turned nice the pup has redoubled her efforts as an excavator. As the dirt grew softer, she grew stronger. Instead of digging many little holes she dug fewer holes—but vastly larger.

Mounds of dirt appeared all over the place, especially in the flower garden. Conditions grew so bad that on arriving home after a hard day at the pizza works I'd look for a fresh pile of dirt and, seeing one, would leap out of the car and pound on her, screaming, "No, no, no, you unprintable, unmentionable, indescribable $9.98! Either you quit digging or I will break your back." It was a ridiculous threat.

It would take a freshly sharpened elephant hook to make any impression on her and a beating with my clenched fist had no more effect than a patter or rain drops on a concrete slab. This is a very strong dog—so strong that when we try to make her lie down we end up on the floor instead, while she licks us.

The only time we ever got through to her with a message was when the animal trainer I live with took off a spear-heeled shoe and wedged the heel between a couple of her slats to keep from being roll-blocked on her way to the car. The pup now respects spear-heeled shoes.

But about the light of understanding. . . It finally dawned on me why the pup, now approaching her first birthday, digs holes. She is looking for underground water.

Before she came to live with us I looked for underground water. She doesn't know this but another fellow and I dug that big hole out in the meadow—the one so big it looks as if it might have been made by natural causes. The other fellow was astride a bulldozer.

These little holes at the edge of the barnyard are my work. There were three of them, though only two still show. Water showed up in all three, but it never showed up in sufficient volume to flow to the top.

Then there's the hole under the linden tree, the one covered over with boards and with stones to hold down the boards. That's a hole! Twelve feet deep. Lined with tile. I didn't dig that one, but I approve of it. That was a spring dug four generations ago by the people who started all the hole-digging at the Twillery.

There's one more hole that must be mentioned—the one in the center of the big hole—the one with the pipe sticking up. That was the hole to end holes. I went down six feet below the surface of the big hole, then bought a thing I pounded in another eight feet, figuring water would squirt up like a gusher in Texas.

Take it from me, pup, you're wasting your time among the snapdragons, petunias, roses, four o'clocks, tomatoes and watermelons what's left of them. There's nothing down there except more hole. You may as well knock it off, which is what they kept telling me until I finally believed them.

This And That

The more intelligent a person is, the more quickly he becomes bored. Recent findings have revealed that people with limited IQ's do not find repetitious work monotonous, but in fact thrive on it — and that people with a high degree of intelligence are bored stiff by repetition and monotony.

Take Care Of The Chickens

Arbitration Could Have Been Better

By Victor Riesel

FARMINGDALE, L.I. Thousands of John Kennedy's supporters are working him into a corner — and his colleagues into a lather — by not working.

They've been forcing the President to go into the federal courts against the unions more frequently than his predecessors — including Dwight D. Eisenhower. They listen to the White House Missile Sites Labor Commission slogan of "talk, don't walk" and then they hit the bricks.

The President has found himself personally involved in tugboat crises, pilot crises, sailors' crises and railroad crises. Out here at the Republic Aviation Corp. his latest labor crisis has gotten him into outerspace, too.

For over three months there has been no production at this plant which has contracts on five major defense projects. These involve equipment for our moon men, our NATO allies, our Asian defenses and our atomic submarine fleet.

WHEN SOME five unions walked out last April 1, Republic had some F-105D planes ready for shipment.

They began gathering dust instead of flight records, though they are the all-weather fighter-bombers which are our principal aerial fighters on the European front. We aren't yet in full strength in Germany. We have promised delivery of this aircraft to our allies. We haven't made it.

Also stalled on the line were sections of the Air Force F-110 and the Navy F-4H.

Somewhere on the lines, too, were sections of 350 different parts the company makes for the moon-bound Saturn missile.

ON THE FIRM'S backlog are orders for structural units for a secret reconnaissance satellite; all-weather guidance systems for the Navy's version of the air-to-ground Bullpup missile produced by another firm; automatic control systems for atomic submarines; and crew training simulators for such vital underwater defense units.

Some of these orders are new — and vital — to this company which has been hit by changes in government contracts.

Advice To Kennedy

By David Lawrence

Six Steps Suggested In Economic Situation

John F. Kennedy could still make a great president. Only a professional partisan would wish him to fail. Yet, if Mr. Kennedy fails in the present crisis, the country's economy will fail, too. He has a chance to save it from a fate worse than the nation encountered in the 1930s. But he is floundering.

David Lawrence

He is surrounded by inexperienced though well-meaning advisers. The outlook, therefore, is not good, and the sooner the President learns how to reverse his course and move forward, the quicker the whole situation will improve.

What can the President do that he is not now doing?

FIRST, it is essential that all luxury spending by the government—all so-called welfare items, for example, that are normally attractive from a political viewpoint—be postponed and expenditures confined to absolute necessities.

Second, it is essential that all spending in the foreign field that is not absolutely necessary in carrying on the cold war be deferred. This will help materially to solve the problem of cutting down the flow of American gold to foreign countries, which is jeopardizing the future value of the dollar. And it is time for the prosperous nations of Western Europe to do more to help on the economic side in the cold war.

Third, it is essential that the confusion about taxes be cleared up at once. An "across-the-board" cut in taxes with increases in other rates to offset losses in revenue, as the President proposed the other day, is a mistake. The complexity of the subject means a delay in the enactment of selected tax changes that are really imperative and demand immediate attention—not next year but right now.

Fourth, much of the so-called tax reform program, involving changes in long-accustomed ways of doing business and conducting personal spending, should be postponed at least until recovery is here. To the cry that "the Treasury needs the money," the answer can be given that a huge increase in revenues from both individuals and corporations will come quickly as a prosperous economy, with full employment, emerges.

Hence, this is not the time to reconstruct the whole system of taxation, even though there are certain inequities which need sooner or later to be corrected. Fifth, it is essential that the American economy be made ready at once to compete in world markets. This means for at least a year or two a self-imposed restraint by labor on any substantial increases in industry's wage costs.

IT MEANS, also, that American industry be given at once an incentive to buy new machinery and equipment, and that the rules of taxation involving what are known as "depreciation reserves" be freed from all of the discouraging restrictions that make it impossible to plan over the next five years for the investment of corporate funds in the modernization of plant.

The "investment credit" of 8 per cent, which the administration has proposed, is grossly inadequate and narrow in its application.

Sixth, it is essential that the President be surrounded by more experienced advisers. He should select a council of at least 10 of the most successful businessmen in the country to sit with him regularly and advise him on economy.

They need not all be "moderates" or hand-picked friends of the administration. Some of the administration's most vehement critics should be included so they will have a chance to argue directly with the President. That's the way to get at the truth about what's going on in the national economy.

IF THE PRESIDENT wishes to have a separate council of 10 labor leaders, or a separate council of small businessmen, or any other group which can help on any important factor in the economic progress of the country, these councils could be very useful, too.

The "joint commission" idea is just a debating society. The time is past, moreover, when matters like these can be delegated either to a Cabinet officer here or there, or to a group of professors and theoreticians who, by reason of their daily contact with the President, influence greatly the most important decisions he makes every day. They can't really write the "guidelines" of a prosperous America, because they are unfamiliar with economic operations from direct experience.

There are many other things Mr. Kennedy himself could do—for instance, spending less time on ceremonial affairs and on political conferences and trips, and more time in dealing with the economic decline now confronting the country.

The President may regard himself as a good politician, but if he doesn't soon get a program to cure the economic ills of the country, he will not be able to rely on the political fences he spends so much time trying to build up nowadays.

Letters To The Editor

In a Council meeting June 4, a letter was read from Dr. E. G. Kuhlman relative to a water condition in Columbian Park, First End.

In this letter, and I quote, "In the past we have been lenient with Mr. Leland Thompson, whose repeated promises have meant nothing."

I was present at the only meeting between Mr. Thompson and Dr. Kuhlman. Mr. Cook was also present at this meeting, which took place over a year ago. At this meeting, Mr. Thompson promised to put oil on the water. I know that he made no other promises at this meeting.

In this letter, Dr. Kuhlman states that Mr. Thompson does not keep his promises. I cannot help but feel that Dr. Kuhlman has done Mr. Thompson a great injustice by this statement.

H. S. JOHNSTON

It was amazing the tempest that was raised last week over the tag day held by boy baseball players while the more important question of what will the community have to offer these young men once they are grown up and are the fine citizens the junior leagues propose to help them to be as never even considered.

After they have finished with their fine education at community schools most will want to settle down in this area, for this is their home. But will they be able to? What jobs will the community be able to offer them? The potteries appear to be fading into oblivion because of their inability to compete in the modern market place. Even their proposals to the U.S. Tariff Commission will not save them. Crucible Steel can only employ so many.

Suppose they go on to a college education. How many will return to the community? What is there for a person with a college degree outside of teaching?

There is no excuse for this situation. There is not a community of this size in the whole country with more natural potential than East Liverpool with its surrounding area. The people are intelligent, hardworking and good. New industry should be flocking to the area and dozens of new jobs should appear each year.

Important as dedicated, unselfish leadership may be, an aroused citizenry is just as important. Leaders are forced to act when the people pressure them.

What employment catastrophe will have to occur to arouse the community out of its apathy? Those who get worked up over tag days might better spend their time on prodding the community and its leaders into awareness of total community problems of which new jobs is the most important.

Patient Attitude Helps Poor Reader

We have reasons to be sorry for any child who is a poor reader. Our heart really aches for any poor reader who worries because she can't do better.

Of a girl in the second grade her mother writes from Ohio: "She is a very poor reader and does not understand anything at all. Dr. Garry Meyers Her teacher has heaped homework on her, requiring as much as an hour and a half. This homework has not seemed to dampen her spirits. She has done it willingly as I have helped her."

"SHE HAS HAD trouble with certain words, as 'was' and 'saw,' 'they' and 'there,' 'when' and 'then.' She gets them mixed up. When she comes to a word she doesn't know, she says it questioningly, and waits for my reaction before she continues."

"My daughter likes school and gets good grades in arithmetic, spelling and English."

"Her teacher advised me to get easy books for her to read. She said I should read one page and have her read the next. I did this but she had so much trouble trying to sound out the words that I soon ran out of patience. She puts sounds into words that just aren't there. If she does sound out a word, she doesn't forget it. If I tell her what a word is, however, she forgets it right away."

"If I read an easy story to her she is very interested. I have tried to have her finish it, but after a few sentences she gives up."

"I have tried praising her, and that didn't work. Then I tried bribing, and finally I have tried threatening her. She says she could do better but doesn't like to read."

"I have had her eyes examined. No problem there."

My reply in part:

TOO BAD YOU let yourself get angry at this suffering child. She doesn't say a word wrong just to be ornery. She supposes she must always say something and comes as near to saying it as she is able. How cruel to be angry at her and to abuse her."

Naturally, she doesn't like to read when it is so hard for her to do so and when you connect so much misery with her reading. As she learns to read better and enjoys more success at it, she will come to like reading."

Unless you can be very calm and patient, you should not try to help her, but find a self-controlled stranger to do so.

Go on reading to her, but don't ask her to read unless you can find much easier materials. Perhaps she doesn't yet know all the letters of the alphabet."

I am enclosing some bulletins—"Helping Your Child at Home in Early Steps of Reading," "Home Fun with Phonics," "Home Helps for Poor Readers" and "Helping Child with Lessons at Home."

The above bulletins may be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of The Review.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I deal with some dents on my carpeting where heavy furniture has been resting for a long time?

A. You can usually fluff these dents back into shape by covering them with a damp cloth, then applying a hot iron over this, after which brush with a stiff brush.

Q. How can I clean the dingy-looking gold patterns on some of my dishes?

A. Scrub them with a dry toothbrush dipped in bicarbonate of soda. Or use a moist toothbrush in powdered alum. Let the alum stay on for a couple of hours, then wash and dry the plate as usual.

Q. How can I produce more roses from one of my favorite rosebushes?

A. Cut a slip from the bush and stick the stem into a white potato. The moisture of the potato will make the slip develop roots. Remove the slip, and plant. Cover the tiny shoot with a glass jar, and leave it for a year or so. Keep it moist at all times, of course.

Neglect Cases Cited

Lions Hear Investigator In Welfare Department

Did you ever hear of feeding an infant a mixture of flour and water as a substitute for milk?

That was one of the cases of physical neglect found by the County Welfare Department, Don Hepp of East Palestine, an investigator, told the Lions Club Friday afternoon at the Travelers Hotel.

He related some of the cases handled by the department, explained its various services and showed photographs of the interiors of a couple of homes where the department made investigations. The photographs were examples of physical neglect where youngsters live in trashy surroundings and do not have proper food or sufficient clothing.

The area case he cited cost the county several thousand dollars, Hepp said.

During an investigation on a hot summer day in which the thermometer was flirting with the 100-degree mark, Hepp said he entered the area home and found a 9-month-old baby weighing only four pounds.

When he first glanced at the scrawny infant, Hepp said it appeared to him the child was dead. Its skin was covered with dark spots.

Ascertaining the baby was alive, he had it taken to City Hospital where it was found to be suffering from severe malnutrition and some other ailments resulting from improper food, he continued.

The house was without electricity and didn't have an icebox so the welfare investigator and he asked the mother how she kept the baby's milk cool.

"That's easy," she smiled. "I give it a mixture of flour and water. It looks like milk and the baby's too young to know the difference," the mother replied.

She had reasoned, Hepp said, that flour was cheap and water was plentiful. But she didn't figure out the baby was unable to retain the mixture and wasn't receiving any nourishment, he added.

Moral neglect usually is involved when parents' morals are such as to lead the child astray.

He interrupted his talk to emphasize that East Liverpool has no more cases per capita, concerning youngsters, than any other area of the county.

More children may be referred from East Liverpool, but the city also has the largest population in the county, he explained.

Handling child welfare cases generally is the most rewarding but it also is the most difficult and most heart-breaking, particularly when the investigators must recommend that Juvenile Court take the children from the parents.

Often, the children still think their parents are wonderful even if they have been beaten and do not have sufficient food or clothing, he said. They seem to have the knack of forgiving and forgetting, he explained.

"There are only a few delinquent children in the county, but an awful lot of delinquent parents," he observed.

The department's total expenditures last year were more than $708,000, he said, with the biggest share going to families on public assistance and for child welfare services.

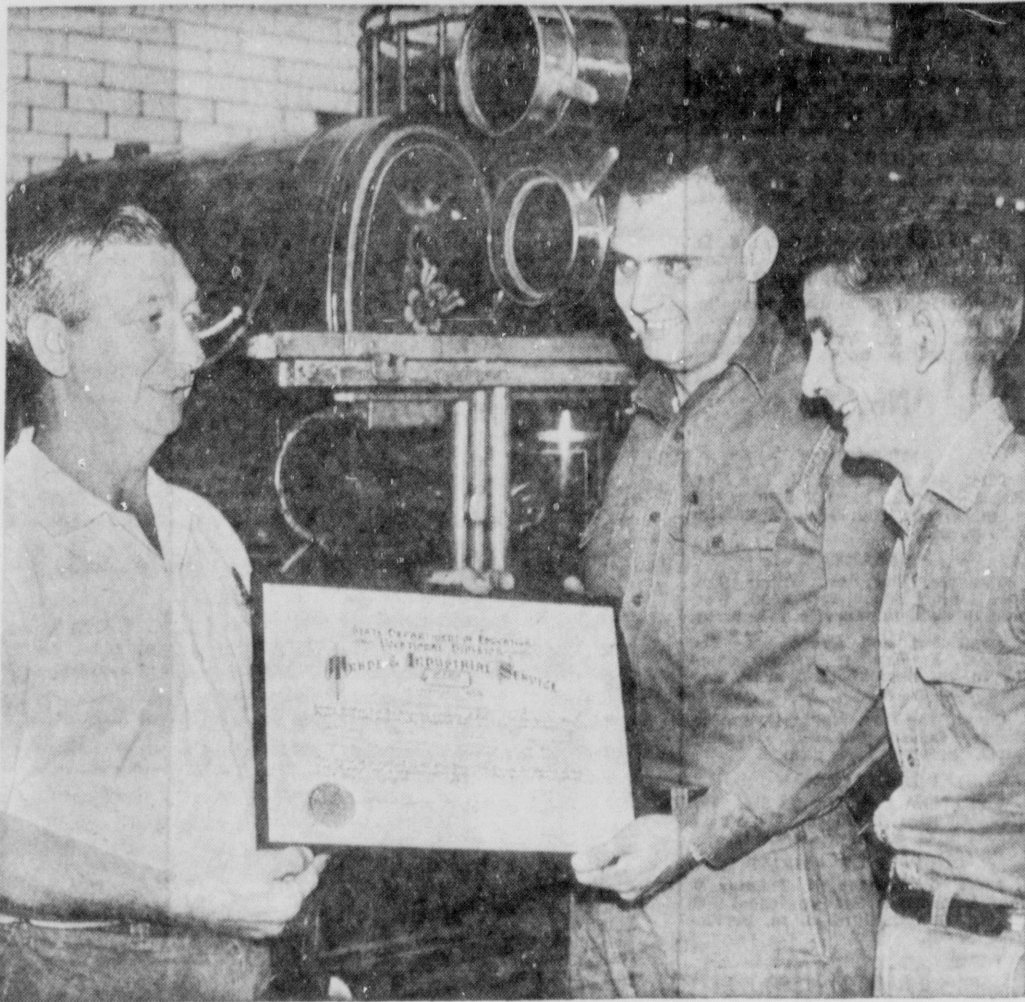

There are 150 children in custody of the department in foster homes, institutions or homes of relatives and parents.

Forty-four children were placed for adoption last year and the department made 120 investigations for Probate Court concerning adoptions. Fifty-six crippled children also were aided by the department.

At the end of the year, the department had 178 cases of aid to dependent children with an expenditure of $266,483, Hepp said. There also were 51 cases of aid to the blind, 182 on aid to the disabled and 140 on general relief.

The general relief is a temporary program but is causing some concern, Hepp said, because it hasn't slackened even with seasonal employment.

He was introduced by Howard Tice, acting program chairman, James Johnston, president, presided.

Hometown Set To Honor U.S. Astronaut Today

MITCHELL, Ind. (AP) — The hometown turned out today to honor Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom—astronaut, Air Force captain and Kentucky colonel.

Gov. Matthew E. Welsh and President Frederick L. Hovde of Purdue University, Grissom's alma mater, headed the list of notables coming for the celebration.

After spending the night at his parents' home on Grissom Avenue (newly renamed), Grissom, 36, was scheduled to lay the cornerstone for Mitchell's new high school, which will be named the Virgil I. Grissom Building.

America's second man in space came home late Friday.

Grissom's reception in this Southern Indiana town of 3,552 was quiet and informal. It was his first visit in almost two years. He has been living in Denbigh, Va.

Catholic Paper Attacks Ike For Recent Statement

BOSTON (AP)—The Pilot, Boston Catholic archdiocesan weekly newspaper, criticizes former President Dwight D. Eisenhower for what it termed "the nearly blasphemous implications" of a recent statement.

The Pilot said the former president was quoted while defending Fairbanks, Alaska, as "the first Marine helicopter squadron ever in combat, and has been in and out of 'whirlybirds' ever since."

Before his latest promotion, McCutcheon had been doing a general's job as Director of Marine Corps Aviation to round out a lengthy history in the aviation field. He was the first colonel in that position.

Born in East Liverpool, he was graduated from East Liverpool High School. He then went on to Carnegie Institute of Technology from 1933 to 1937 and earned a bachelor of science degree in management engineering.

He entered the Marine Corps in August 1937, and after two years as a line officer, received a chance at aviation training and qualified as a naval aviator in July 1940.

McCutcheon then attended post-graduate school at the U. S. Naval Academy and earned a master of science degree in aeronautical engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He attempted to quit school to take an active part in World War II, but was sent back to school by Maj. C. C. Jerome, who was later to become his "boss" during the Philippines campaign.

Gen. McCutcheon earned the Silver Star in the Philippines where he prevented the senseless shelling of friendly guerrilla forces by Allied vessels. As a one-man scouting party, he set out in a light aircraft and returned with Keith B. McCutcheon, 46, is the youngest general in the U. S. Marine Corps and those who know him forecast the East Liverpool native is destined to go higher.

He received his brigadier general's star just before arriving at Kaneohe Marine Corps Air Station in Hawaii in March and was given a unique job following the promotion.

Brig. Gen. McCutcheon was handed the 1st Marine Brigade—unique because both its air and ground elements are "under one roof" and under the control of a single tactical commander—McCutcheon.

High-ranking officers at Kaneohe say there isn't another set-up like it in the U. S. military complex.

Cigar-smoking McCutcheon, who keeps in shape by rising about 6 a. m. for daily calisthenics, has no qualms about the assignment, pointing out the job is "in his own ballpark."

He has long been familiar with facets of the close air support system in battle, and thinks the helicopter is the biggest innovation in ground combat.

It is in the special field of "choppers" that McCutcheon is on familiar ground. During the Korean War, he was with the first Marine helicopter squadron ever in combat, and has been in and out of "whirlybirds" ever since.

Before his latest promotion, McCutcheon had been doing a general's job as Director of Marine Corps Aviation to round out a lengthy history in the aviation field. He was the first colonel in that position.

Born in East Liverpool, he was graduated from East Liverpool High School. He then went on to Carnegie Institute of Technology from 1933 to 1937 and earned a bachelor of science degree in management engineering.

He entered the Marine Corps in August 1937, and after two years as a line officer, received a chance at aviation training and qualified as a naval aviator in July 1940.

McCutcheon then attended post-graduate school at the U. S. Naval Academy and earned a master of science degree in aeronautical engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He attempted to quit school to take an active part in World War II, but was sent back to school by Maj. C. C. Jerome, who was later to become his "boss" during the Philippines campaign.

Gen. McCutcheon earned the Silver Star in the Philippines where he prevented the senseless shelling of friendly guerrilla forces by Allied vessels. As a one-man scouting party, he set out in a light aircraft and returned with information that changed the whole campaign and saved many lives.

After the end of World War II, McCutcheon was assigned to the Bureau of Aeronautics and spent over three years in the guided missiles. It was his longest assignment. Some of the weapons he helped raise from their infancy are in use today, including the Regulus and the Sparrow.

In December 1951, McCutcheon assumed command of the Marine Helicopter Squadron 161 in Korea. The squadron now flies out of the hangars at Kaneohe as the brigade's vertical assault arm.

The general is a son of Mrs. M. D. McCutcheon, 333 Thompson Ave., and the late Dr. M. D. McCutcheon.

Dr. McCutcheon was a captain at a hospital in France during World War I. Gen. McCutcheon's younger brother, John T. McCutcheon, 40, earned the Silver Star in Germany during World War II and is now a resident of Sewickley. He is vice president of Guibert Steel Co. in Coraopolis.

Gen. McCutcheon is married to the former Marion Thompson and they have two children, Marion, 12, and Keith, 6.

Beaver United Funds Goal Set At $765,652

BEAVER — A goal of $765,652 has been established for the United Funds campaign in Beaver County, it was announced at the meeting of the Board of Directors Wednesday night in Rochester.

James A. Dunn, president, said the goal is 7 per cent higher than the $720,000 raised last fall but "considerably under" the amount the affiliated agencies have estimated as their operating needs for next year.

The directors also approved the establishment of a Health and Welfare Council for the county, whose support is included in the goal. The new agency will study the needs of services and recommend where charity contributions can be spent more effectively.

Fouty won the Nationalist nomination on the second ballot, defeating William Becker of Amherst and Alfred Zangri of Chillicothe.

The remainder of the state nominees were to be selected at convention sessions today and all will appear at rallies tonight.

The expression, "a feather in his cap," is believed to have sprung from an ancient custom in Hungary when a soldier fastened a feather in his cap every time he had killed an enemy. The number of slain enemies was indicated by the number of feathers in a Hungarian's cap.

Palmer And Rosburg Deadlocked At 139 For Open Lead

Showdown Rounds Set At Oakmont

By DON WEISS Associated Press Sports Writer OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, by dusk today, may have barged through another heavy but outstanding day's job at the office.

Like winning the National Open golf championship for the second time in three years, earning as much as $15,000, and nailing down the second part of his four-part season's goal—the grand slam of professional golf.

Palmer, the Masters champion, shares the lead in the 62nd edition of America's prestige tournament with paunchy, unorthodox Bob Rosburg going into the showdown 36 holes today. Each has a total of 139—fashioned when Palmer whittled the 6,894-yard, par 36-35—71 Oakmont Country Club course into size Friday with a 3-under-par 68 and Rosburg added a 2-under-par 69 to the 70 he had fired on Thursday.

Close behind them are Billy Maxwell at 141, Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player of South Africa and young Bobby Nichols at 142 and defending champion Gene Littler and Miller Barber Jr. at 143.

By the time the 51 surviving players from the original field of 250 complete the stamina-testing double round, the Oakmont record of 283 may have been shattered. Ben Hogan set it when he won his last of four Open championships in 1953.

It took a 36-hole score of 150 or better to qualify for today's last two rounds based on the low 50 scorers and ties. Sam Snead, playing in his 22nd Open without a championship, barely made the cutoff—with a 74 for 150 on the nose.

Chief casualties were four former Open champions—Billy Casper, Tommy Bolt, Ed Furgol and Cary Middlecoff, the 1961 PGA champion and runnerup, Jerry Barber and Don January, plus former Masters and PGA champ Jackie Burke.

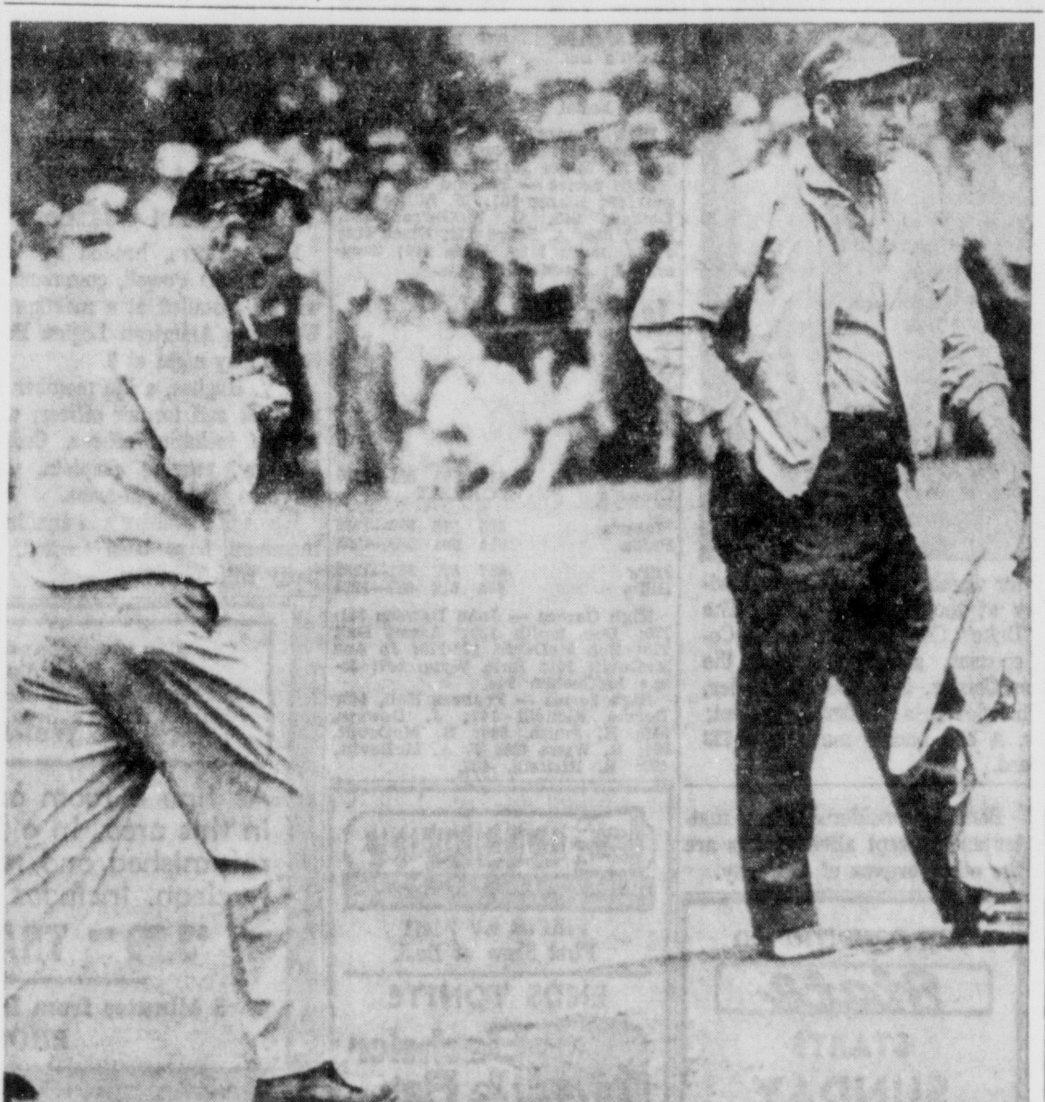

The leaders: Arnold Palmer 71-68—139 Bob Rosburg 70-69—139 Billy Maxwell 71-70—141 Bobby Nichols 70-72—142 Gary Player 71-71—142 Jack Nicklaus 72-70—142 Gene Littler 69-74—143 Miller Barber Jr. 73-70—143 Phil Rodgers 74-70—144 Don Whit 73-71—144 Dave Douglas 74-70—144

Ohioan's scores: a-Ed Meister Jr. 78-72—150 Leo Biagetti 78-73—151 Bob Shave Jr. 77-77—152 Bob Zimmerman 75-75—152 Paul Thomas 80-77—157 Ed Griffiths 86-74—160 a-Bob Carson 76-85—161 Frank Beley 82-82—164 Charles G. Smith 83-84—167

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Bob Bell, a 57-year-old Worthington businessman, let nine-time champion Allen Rankin of Columbus beat himself on a sudden death playoff hole for the 22nd Ohio Seniors Golf Championship Friday.

Bell and Rankin were tied with 156s after the regulation 36-hole play over Scioto Country Club's rugged course. On the 37th hole Rankin's second shot wandered into the rough and he failed to get down an 18-foot putt to match Bell's par 4.

Bucs' 7-Run Rally Nets 7th In Row; Indians Blank Yanks; Twins Lose

LA, Frisco Are Tripped

By JIM HACKLEMAN Associated Press Sports Writer Charlie James and the St. Louis Cardinals wrecked the faltering San Francisco Giants and southpaw Billy O'Dell Friday night 5-2, making it 10 victories in the last 11 games for St. Louis and 9 defeats in the last 11 starts for San Francisco.

James got the Cards off winging with a three-run homer in the first inning, later whacked a pair of singles, stole a base and scored another run. It gave the St. Louis outfielder 7 hits in 12 trips and 6 runs batted in against the Giant lefty this season.

Also in the National League, Houston's Jim Golden pitched a five-hit 2-0 shutout over the Los Angeles Dodgers, whose lead over the Giants remained at two games; Pittsburgh won its seventh straight, erupting for seven runs in the eighth and overcoming Milwaukee 9-8; Philadelphia mounted a 10-run barrage in the third inning and outscored Cincinnati 13-8, and Chicago trimmed New York 5-1 in the battle of tail-enders.

Golden, the right-hander given up by the Dodgers to the Colts in last fall's expansion draft, checked his former club on five singles, did not allow a walk, and faced only 31 men.

Pittsburgh's storybook comeback against Milwaukee overcame a six-run deficit in a rally keyed by Roberto Clemente's grand slam homer and Dick Groat's clinching single. Held to three hits by Tony Cloninger going into the eighth, the Pirates bunched Clemente's big hit, six singles and two walks.

The Phillies' 10-run third against Cincinnati was the club's biggest one inning output since 1949. Fifteen Phils batted against Jim Maloney and Johnny Klippstein. In addition to Roy Sievers' grand slam and single, their were seven other hits, two walks and a Cincinnati error.

Pitcher Bob Anderson helped himself with a two-run triple as the Cubs gave themselves a two-game cushion over the Mets and snapped a four-game losing string. Billy Williams, the league's leading batter, knocked in two Cub runs and Ernie Banks socked his 18th homer.

Post 374 Drops 4-To-2 Decision

American Legion Post 374 out-hit Steubenville but dropped a 4-2 decision Friday at Steubenville.

Pitcher Ed Six of the local squad lost a two-hit performance as Steubenville capitalized on a few costly errors.

Shortstop Maley collected one hit for Steubenville and scored two runs.

Hamilton, second baseman for the locals, got two hits off Fornasiglio who pitched for Steubenville. Six walked six and struck out three. Fornasiglio fanned seven and walked only one in picking up the victory.

Chisox Win, Tigers Falter

By JIM BECKER Associated Press Sports Writer When Ralph Houk was in the Army times were never like this. The New York Yankee manager was a major, decorated for combat, in World War II. He got few, if any weekend passes to play baseball, and Pfc's never gave him any trouble. Those were the days.

Pfc. Jim (Mudcat) Grant used his weekend pass Friday night to shut out Houk's Yankees for the

Tribe Sends Hawkins To Jacksonville Club

CLEVELAND — Ruben Gomez, 34, a right-handed pitcher who has been in organized baseball since 1949, was purchased today by the Cleveland Indians from Jacksonville, their International League farm club. To make room for Gomez the Indians optioned pitcher Wynn Hawkins to Jacksonville.

Cleveland Indians, 3-0. In doing so, Grant became the first Cleveland pitcher to set the Yankees down without a run since Early Wynn did it on June 27, 1957.

It was the fourth Yankee loss in five games.

Minnesota, with a chance to take over the lead, dropped one to the Kansas City Athletics 6-1, the Los Angeles Angels lost to the Chicago White Sox 7-6 and the Detroit Tigers dropped their sixth straight, 3-0, to Boston. Baltimore whipped Washington 8-3.

When the smoke cleared, the Yankees still had a one percentage point lead over Minnesota, with Cleveland three percentage points back. In the games-behind department, the Twins were actually a half-game better than the Yanks.

A crowd of 49,422, largest of the year in Cleveland, roared when rookie Al Luplow banged a two-run homer in the sixth inning to break up a scoreless duel between Grant and Ralph Terry.

Camilo Pascual, the leading Minnesota pitcher, lost his third straight to Kansas City, as the A's tagged him for two runs in the second and knocked him out in the fourth with four more. Jerry Walker (7-4) won it for Kansas City with help from Ed Rakow.

The Angels had a 6-4 lead over the White Sox in the eighth, powered by home runs by Felix Torres, Leon Wagner and Billy Moran but the Sox got an unearned run in that inning and the winning pair in the last of the ninth. Russ Kemmerer (2-1) got the win after Early Wynn failed to hold an early lead.

Boston righthander Gene Conley, in trouble all the way, did the shutout job on the slumping Tigers, who left 11 men on base. The loss string was the longest of the year for Detroit.

Milt Pappas (7-3), scattered eight Washington hits and hit his fourth home run of the season. Jackie Brandt also homered for Baltimore, and Joe Hicks and Chuck Hinton hit homers for the Senators.

78 Cars Examined
SALINEVILLE — Seventy-eight cars were checked in a free safety inspection held by the Ruritan Club Thursday and Friday nights on Washington St. The motorists either were issued a safety sticker or advised of the need for corrections. Materials for the check were provided by the Hart Motor Co.
By noting variations between predicted low and the actual low temperature, an amateur can arrive at a correction factor that will enable him to beat the experts at forecasting weather for his own backyard.

Home Struck At West Point

The side of a West Point home was heavily damaged when rammed by a car driven by a Lisbon area youth Friday night at 11:30. The Lisbon State Highway Patrol said the car driven by Frances R. Postage, 17, of Lisbon R. D. 2 struck the side of the home of Earl C. Tice.

Postage was headed north on Route 45 near the intersection with County Route 417 when he lost control after crossing a dip in the highway. The car swerved left of center, veered off the road and struck the home.

The block wall of the cellar was caved in and an interior stairway was torn out, officers said.

The front of the 1957 sedan was demolished. Postage, who was involved in another mishap earlier this week, suffered lacerations of the nose and abrasions of the face. A passenger, Donna Chuck, 16, of Lisbon R.D. 2, suffered a possible fracture of the ankle.

Postage was cited to Juvenile Court, officers said.

David T. Criss, 4, son of David Criss, 33, of Salem suffered cuts and bruises of the entire body when he fell from his father's car on Middle Rd. north of Damascus Friday night at 9:10. The child tumbled out the rear door, officers said.

2 Missing Persons Return To Homes

A 16-year-old city youth, missing since Tuesday afternoon, and a 26-year-old Liverpool Township woman, missing since Wednesday, have returned to their homes, police were told.

Ronny Echols, 423 College St., returned home yesterday. His disappearance was reported to officers Thursday morning by his father, Billy Echols, who said his son left late Tuesday afternoon.

Betty Lou Hager, 1854 Pennsylvania Ave. Ext., returned home early last night, her mother, Mrs. Edna Hager, told police. The woman left home at 7 p. m. Wednesday and was reported missing at 11:30 a. m. yesterday.

Because her home is in Liverpool Township, the official report was turned over to the sheriff's office, police said.

It's Too Easy to Get Married!

By REBECCA LISWOOD, M.D.

Founder and Executive Director, Marriage Counseling Service of Greater New York

as told to Lester and Irene David

I ENJOY a beautiful June wedding as much as the next woman. But I'm afraid all the lovely sentiment surrounding such occasions can't make me forget that too many brides and bridegrooms don't live happily ever after.

During the past 30 years, I have counseled more than 6,000 couples, and I know what tragic heartaches lie behind those impersonal statistics that tell of 395,000 divorces each year.

Everyone agrees something ought to be done about this pressing social problem. Yet most people ignore a basic cause of the trouble—the fact that getting married is too easy.

Marriage is an enormously complex relationship. Our licensing laws, however, ignore the complexity. They make marriage so easy that many people slide into it without being properly equipped for the long and difficult job of building a lasting, loving union. Something is wrong when it is easier to get married than to obtain a driver's license.

About half the states require short waiting periods averaging only three days before a marriage license can be issued—and 20 stipulate no delay. Most states require applicants to pass a blood test showing freedom from venereal disease—but six states don't even ask for that.

Age requirements have risen somewhat, but they still are shockingly low. Six states permit girls to marry at 14 with parental consent, eight others at 15, and the rest at 16. Age limits for boys range from 15 to 18, with the consent of their parents.

Why are easy marriages so hazardous? There are four main reasons:

1. People marry without thinking ahead to problems that may arise and thus are totally unprepared to cope with them.

The short waiting period in most states prevents "quickie" marriages, but it doesn't stop the "semiquickies," which are becoming more common in these tense times.

The experience of two 19-year-olds is typical. They had dated regularly for six months. One day they visited a newly married couple, heard rapturous stories of their happiness—and, on the way home, decided to take the step, too.

In two weeks they were married, but within six months they were miserable. A baby was on the way, and the young man, who had aspired to be a lawyer, was forced to quit school. His hopes for a career were shattered, and he took out his resentment on his wife. They had waited

A noted authority on family relations warns: too-early, too-hasty marriages turn the road to romance into a dead-end street as long as the law required, but it was too short a time for a thorough evaluation of all the possible problems a marriage can bring.

2. People marry without a basic understanding of their obligations and responsibilities.

I recently talked to a 34-year-old businessman who was having explosive quarrels with his wife. They had married less than a year before. His reason for waiting so long? "I was too busy building a business."

About all he knew of marriage—and I mean this quite literally—was that two persons live together as man and wife! He continued his absorption in his work, conducting his life exactly as he did while single. He offered his wife little time, less consideration, and virtually no tenderness and affection. Small wonder she rebelled!

3. People select partners for wrong reasons.

I know a young couple who were happily in love for a year, but in all that time never really knew one another. She was impressed with his looks and his humor; he was "just wild about her" and looked no more deeply.

He didn't realize his future wife hated housework; she was unaware he would keep tight hold of the family purse strings. After marriage, they came to realize these things about each other—and bitter disillusionment set in.

4. People marry when still too young physically and emotionally.

Some persons in their late teens can be mature and responsible enough to build fine lives together. But can the same be said for youngsters of 14 and 15?

Children of that age simply haven't lived long enough to make a success of marriage and parenthood. Yet tens of thousands of babies are born each year to boys and girls in their teens. In most cases, the fathers leave school to take jobs, but they are untrained for anything but the lowest-paid positions. Without further education, their futures—as well as the futures of their children—are dismal.

WHAT IS THE SOLUTION to this problem of too-easy, too-early marriages?

Change the laws? In a free society, we must guard against violating the individual's right of privacy. So we cannot drastically alter regulations except where a change is obviously needed for the protection of the individual and society.

One change, however, is not only clearly permissible but urgently needed. That is to raise the age limit to a more sensible level, even with parental consent. The minimum marriage age should be 17 for girls and 18 for boys.

State officials also might re-examine their waiting-period laws and ask themselves: would a longer period afford young people time to have marriage-saving second thoughts?

But altering regulations is only part of the answer. The rest must come from ourselves by way of the home, the schools, the churches. Parents should impress upon children the importance of marriage so that they will grow up with the firm conviction that matrimony requires careful thought and preparation. Our schools and churches should offer detailed courses in marriage and family relationships. Some are now being given, but they reach only a few.

I recall one young man who spent a winter taking a course on how to operate a small boat he intended buying in the spring for his honeymoon. But he never thought to learn anything about marriage—which has storms just as dangerous as any he would encounter in his boat!

Too many young people are walking into marriage the same way. I am convinced that, to strengthen our family life and lower our appalling divorce rate, we must teach them that marriage licenses should not be bought as casually as postage stamps across a counter.

FOREST FIRES AND YOU!

Did you ever wonder about forest fires and why Smokey Bear tries to keep them down? SMOKEY says that every forest fire costs too much. Just putting out last year's fires cost more than $100,000,000, and it came right out of your pocket.

What else did you lose?

You lost timber, millions of feet of it—timber that won't be there when you want to build your new home or put up a summer cabin.

You lost birds, animals, and fish, that add so much to your outings.

You lost priceless scenery, and recreation areas that are needed now more than ever.

Worst of all, you lost soil and water—the lifeblood of our land. Burn off the cover of a watershed, and the sure result is soil erosion, and destructive runoff of water, flooding our towns, silting our reservoirs. Water—most precious of all resources—wasted through carelessness!

There's much at stake. So, please, be extra careful with fire in 1962!

unique YMCA venture

IN MOST FAMILIES the presents stop when Father's Day ends. But in a unique YMCA program, dads return their sons' gifts all summer long.

These fathers do it by going to camp with their six- to nine-year-old sons. Since work and school ordinarily limit the activities fathers and sons can share, this gift of time and companionship is especially welcome.

Dad Goes to Camp with

Known as Indian Guides, the dad-son plan thrives in Y's across the country. This group from Charlotte, N. C., takes trips to a camp several times during the summer. The activities there include hiking, games, races, boating, swimming, crafts, and Indian lore, and the feeling of adventure is heightened by sleeping in log cabins and cooking over open campfires.

When the outings are over, the boys not only have become closer to their fathers but have a feeling of participation in an adult world they know only dimly. The fun works both ways, of course: the fathers are just as happy to have shared the joy of being kids again.

Attending worship is a shared experience.

I was just thinking...

SOMETHING should be done about the juvenile delinquent who lives in a tree in our back yard.

Neither we nor his parents can figure out a solution. It's difficult enough with children, but what do you do with a recalcitrant robin?

He began running away from home before the first fuzz appeared on his chin. We weren't aware of the situation until he appeared in the flower bed yesterday.

His parents were frantic. He didn't fly from the nest, because he couldn't yet. He simply lurched to the edge and parachuted into space.

His mother was wringing her wings and sobbing plaintively. His father stood around looking helpless.

Not Junior, the happy little moron. He squatted among the petunias and giggled.

ILLUSTRATION BY JOHN ALLEN

Mother tried to herd him home, but Junior hopped into the patio and stuck his tongue out at us. We shooed him in the direction of the tree.

JUNIOR THOUGHT it was an exciting game. He trotted into the thicket and waited for Mother's next move. With tears running down her feathers, she landed under his nose and hopped hopefully toward the nest.

Junior leered and skipped back to the patio. Mother found a bug and held it out enticingly. Junior hid out in the petunias.

Father Robin washed his wings of the whole mess. We tried to engage in police action, but Mother Robin was so distraught that she attacked our squad. We retired to comb our hair, and Junior lay in the flower bed and laughed.

We have the utmost sympathy for Mother. She's making some effort at least. Obviously, Father is the one who needs some instruction in child care.

I'm taking a hairbrush out to him right now, along with advice on how it's best applied.

Bette Davis

dress and manner a decidedly actorish actor, with whom she had starred in "All About Eve." Those who know Gary understand how she could forget her resolves about not marrying an actor. He is a good actor, as he would have to be to attract her, and he is one of the subtly sardonic men women always find irresistible—but not necessarily compatible.

She is now divorced from Gary, but refuses to discuss him or their current difficulties about money and visiting privileges. "I will not have the children dragged through the newspapers again if I can help it," she says. "They've had enough."

Bette and I recently spent a few hours in her suite at the Royale Theater in New York where she was costarring in Tennessee Williams' "The Night of the Iguana." A few weeks later she exercised her option and withdrew from the cast. After six months in this play she felt she "had had it." She since has taken B. D., Margo, and Michael, 10, also adopted, with her to Hollywood, where she is to star in "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane?"

But when I saw her, Bette was in costume for the play: blue jeans held up with rope, and partly unbuttoned shirt. Her suite of two rooms and bath, high over the stage, was carpeted wall to wall in a pink red. The curtains were white with garnet red roses as were slip covers on her daybed and chairs. No make-shift background for Bette!

Houses are extremely important to her, too.

"The children must have a home," she says. "So must I, which is why I rented a house in New York."

"It is like a quiet little island in the crowded and noisy city, an old-fashioned brownstone that has been painted white, and there's a lovely garden in back."

Last year, except for a twice-a-week cleaning woman, Bette ran the four-story house herself, even when the three children were home for Christmas, Easter, and summer vacations.

"I wasn't working, so I had a fine time being domestic," she says. "I'd rather cook than act any day. Cooking's the most fun in the world!"

The things for which Bette says she is the most grateful, in order of their happening, are the satisfaction of having reached her goal and her children.

"It's an enormous satisfaction to me," she says, "that I'm considered a good business investment. If you aren't this, you might as well shut your little make-up box and go home. You won't get any opportunity worth having."

"MY CHILDREN, in addition to all they mean in themselves, give me a fine incentive without which any work becomes real drudgery. I keep going so they may live well and be educated properly."

"I've tried to sidestep the resentment children can feel for mothers who work. The trick is to give children a sense of being loved and of being important—yet leave them free. I'm certain B. D., Margo, and Michael know they're more important to me than anyone or anything."

The effort Bette recently made to give Michael a birthday party illustrates her determination never to permit her children to feel they are stranded on the periphery of her busy life.

FOLLOWING her Saturday-evening performance, she caught a 12:45 a.m. train for Boston, arriving at an outlying station at 6 Sunday morning. After about three hours' sleep, she went to pick up Michael so they would have a little time alone before his friends arrived for the party. And that night, after the boys had been returned to school, she caught a train for New York, reaching home at 5 o'clock Monday morning. That evening, of course, she was on stage as usual.

I tried to tell her how much I've always admired her cheerful devotion to her children, her pursuit of a positive viewpoint, her insistence that life should have charm. But I didn't get very far, New Englanders being the way they are.

She stood before me, small feet apart, hands on slim hips, and in inimitable Davis fashion blurted:

"It's so much easier, for heaven's sake, if you can just keep things pleasant!"

There, in a nutshell of 14 words, is Bette's philosophy, the reason why—whatever has beset her—I have never heard her pity herself and have never seen her cry.

Crying she reserves for the make-believe world.

Oklahoma's First Family of Fishing

They keep reeling in record catches—and championship trophies

By LEE H. SCHRIMPF

FOR THEIR HONEYMOON, Joe and Agnes Krieger, of Tulsa, Okla., went on a fishing trip into the wilds of Canada. That set the pattern. Since then, they have become the fishingest family in Oklahoma—and possibly the whole country.

Joe, 38, is the current fresh-water fishing champion, a title he snagged at an anglers' world series on Oklahoma's Grand Lake o' the Cherokees. But at home he has to share the glory. Two of his youngsters—Joe III, 12, and Jeanne, 14—already are junior fishing champions. His other children—Joanne, 15, Julie, 13, Steve, 11, and Jane, 10—also are avid anglers who have hauled in some impressive catches. And although his wife has no official titles, she does hold the family's record for landing the biggest bass, a whopping 10-pounder.

The Kriegers share their know-how with others through an informal fishing school. The course includes some "class-room" work (using Krieger home movies of fishing trips), live demonstrations by Joe, Agnes, and the kids, and a weekend fishing trip during which the Krieger theories are put to the test.

In the years ahead, the fishing Kriegers are certain to reel in many more titles because some of the youngsters are even more dedicated anglers than their parents. "My oldest son can fish all day without tiring," Joe says. "Sometimes I have to make him quit for his own good."

Joe and Agnes Krieger (center) and the youngsters enjoy photos of their fishing trips.

Bette Davis Talks About Her Private Life

Life off screen sometimes has treated this star as roughly as it has on screen — but she has no regrets and much to be thankful for

By ADELE WHITELY FLETCHER

BETTE DAVIS and I have been friends for 20 years.

I knew her long ago when she was in the grip of the frustration that plagues any woman who knows the man she loves is a professional charmer.

I have been her guest at a subsequent dinner party at which she accorded her husband every courtesy, consulting him about the wine, smiling at his jokes, paying the utmost heed to all he had to say—although their marriage was tumbling down.

I have gone with her to visit the little retarded girl she adopted. Two reasons why Bette continues hard at work are to earn tuition for the school where Margo, 11 years old now and quite beautiful, receives special training, and for the life annuity that will take care of Margo.

I will never forget the night when she insisted upon appearing at a benefit for the Actors' Fund, although she was in deep pain, with her physician in attendance backstage. The jaw surgery which she underwent the next day was so serious that she was on the operating table for more than two hours, and her convalescence was so slow it was rumored she had cancer of the bone.

Yet I have never known Bette to pity herself; nor have I ever seen her cry.

Do not get the idea, however, that she is a meek spirit. Quite the contrary. She's a rebel. She gets fighting mad. She can be exceedingly articulate about what she likes and dislikes, thinks and does not think. And, confronted with stupidity, she's prone to snort and yell.

Bette has never had a lasting marriage, and that is a pity. Divorce does not disturb some stars, but Bette is New England to the bone and sets great store in marriage, home life, and children.

Now 54, she says she is learning to think of herself as an "unmarried woman." She does not expect to marry again: "I like men, as my history certainly indicates, but they just can't take this 'fame' thing.

"It probably doesn't help that I incline to be outspoken and impatient. You get on best with a man by waiting for him to do whatever needs doing in his way. I find this difficult to do whether the man is my lawyer, son, or husband."

BETTE ARRIVED in Hollywood in 1930 and initially had a rough time. Then, slowly but surely, she began establishing herself as one of the outstanding personalities and artists of the film colony.

In 1935, she won an Academy Award for "Dangerous" and in 1938 for "Jezebel." At the time of her first award, she was married to Harmon O. Nelson, a musician. They had been students together at Cushing Academy in Ashburnham, Mass. His middle name was Oscar, and Bette named her statuette after him. The name caught on, and soon all Hollywood was referring to the prized statuettes as "Oscars."

Harmon Nelson, a fine, gentle man, found it increasingly difficult to cope with his wife's soaring success, and they were divorced in 1939—in spite of their best efforts.

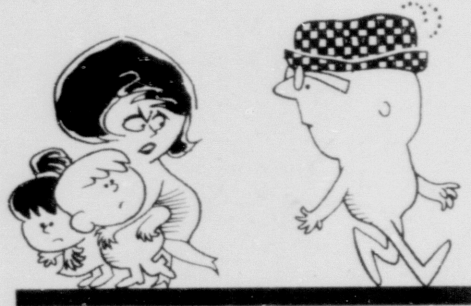

On New Year's Day, 1941, Bette married Arthur Farnsworth, an executive for an aircraft instrument company. Two years later, "Farney" died of a brain hemorrhage.

In 1945, she married William Grant Sherry, an artist. She tried to stick out this marriage, especially after her daughter "B. D." (real name Barbara) was born by Caesarean section in 1947. But in 1950 the Sherrys were divorced.

Bette always had insisted she never would marry an actor. But in 1950 she married Gary Merrill, in

Pet Peeve

Our neighbors call their children in Whenever I stroll by;
They aren't allowed to speak to me,
But aren't told quite why.
It's not that I have chicken pox
Or that I'll steal their mittens;
The parents know (and fear)
this fact—
Our cat has had more kittens.

■ Dad awoke to find his persistent four-year-old standing next to his bed. "I wanna shine your shoes for Father's Day," the boy said. Dad thanked him but declined the offer. The determined youngster could not be dissuaded, however.

"Oh, go ahead and let him shine them," the mother said. "He only wants to do something for you."

Outvoted, the father saw his shoes disappear and then, 15 minutes later, reappear a glistening black. "See what a beautiful job he did," the mother said proudly. "You never saw a shine like that before!"

"Nope," the father replied, "and especially on my brown shoes!"

When we bought a new car, we chose Super de Luxe,
Though the price was considerably higher.

And why? The upholstery, smart as a tux,
Showed the skill of the weaver and dyer.

Then we put on seat covers before it was eve,

Quite cheap ones with hideous tints
(Our cash being sadly depleted), and we've

Not seen our upholstery since.

■ All his life, he had been fighting his way up the ladder of success, a crude but aggressive businessman. At last he had enough money to take it easy and live the life of a gentleman.

His wife was particularly anxious to climb into the stratum of high society, and she gave intimate dinners for the best people in town.

One evening a local dowager arrived for dinner and was ushered into the stylish living room. The husband started to rise to greet the guest.

"Oh, don't get up," the society woman protested.

The wife interrupted immediately. "Let him alone," she exclaimed. "He's just learning!"

■ At long last, the June wedding was over, and the bride's mother and father dragged themselves home, exhausted by months of preparation. The husband headed right for bed, but his wife turned on a reading lamp and settled down with a book.

"Don't tell me you're going to read now," the husband said.

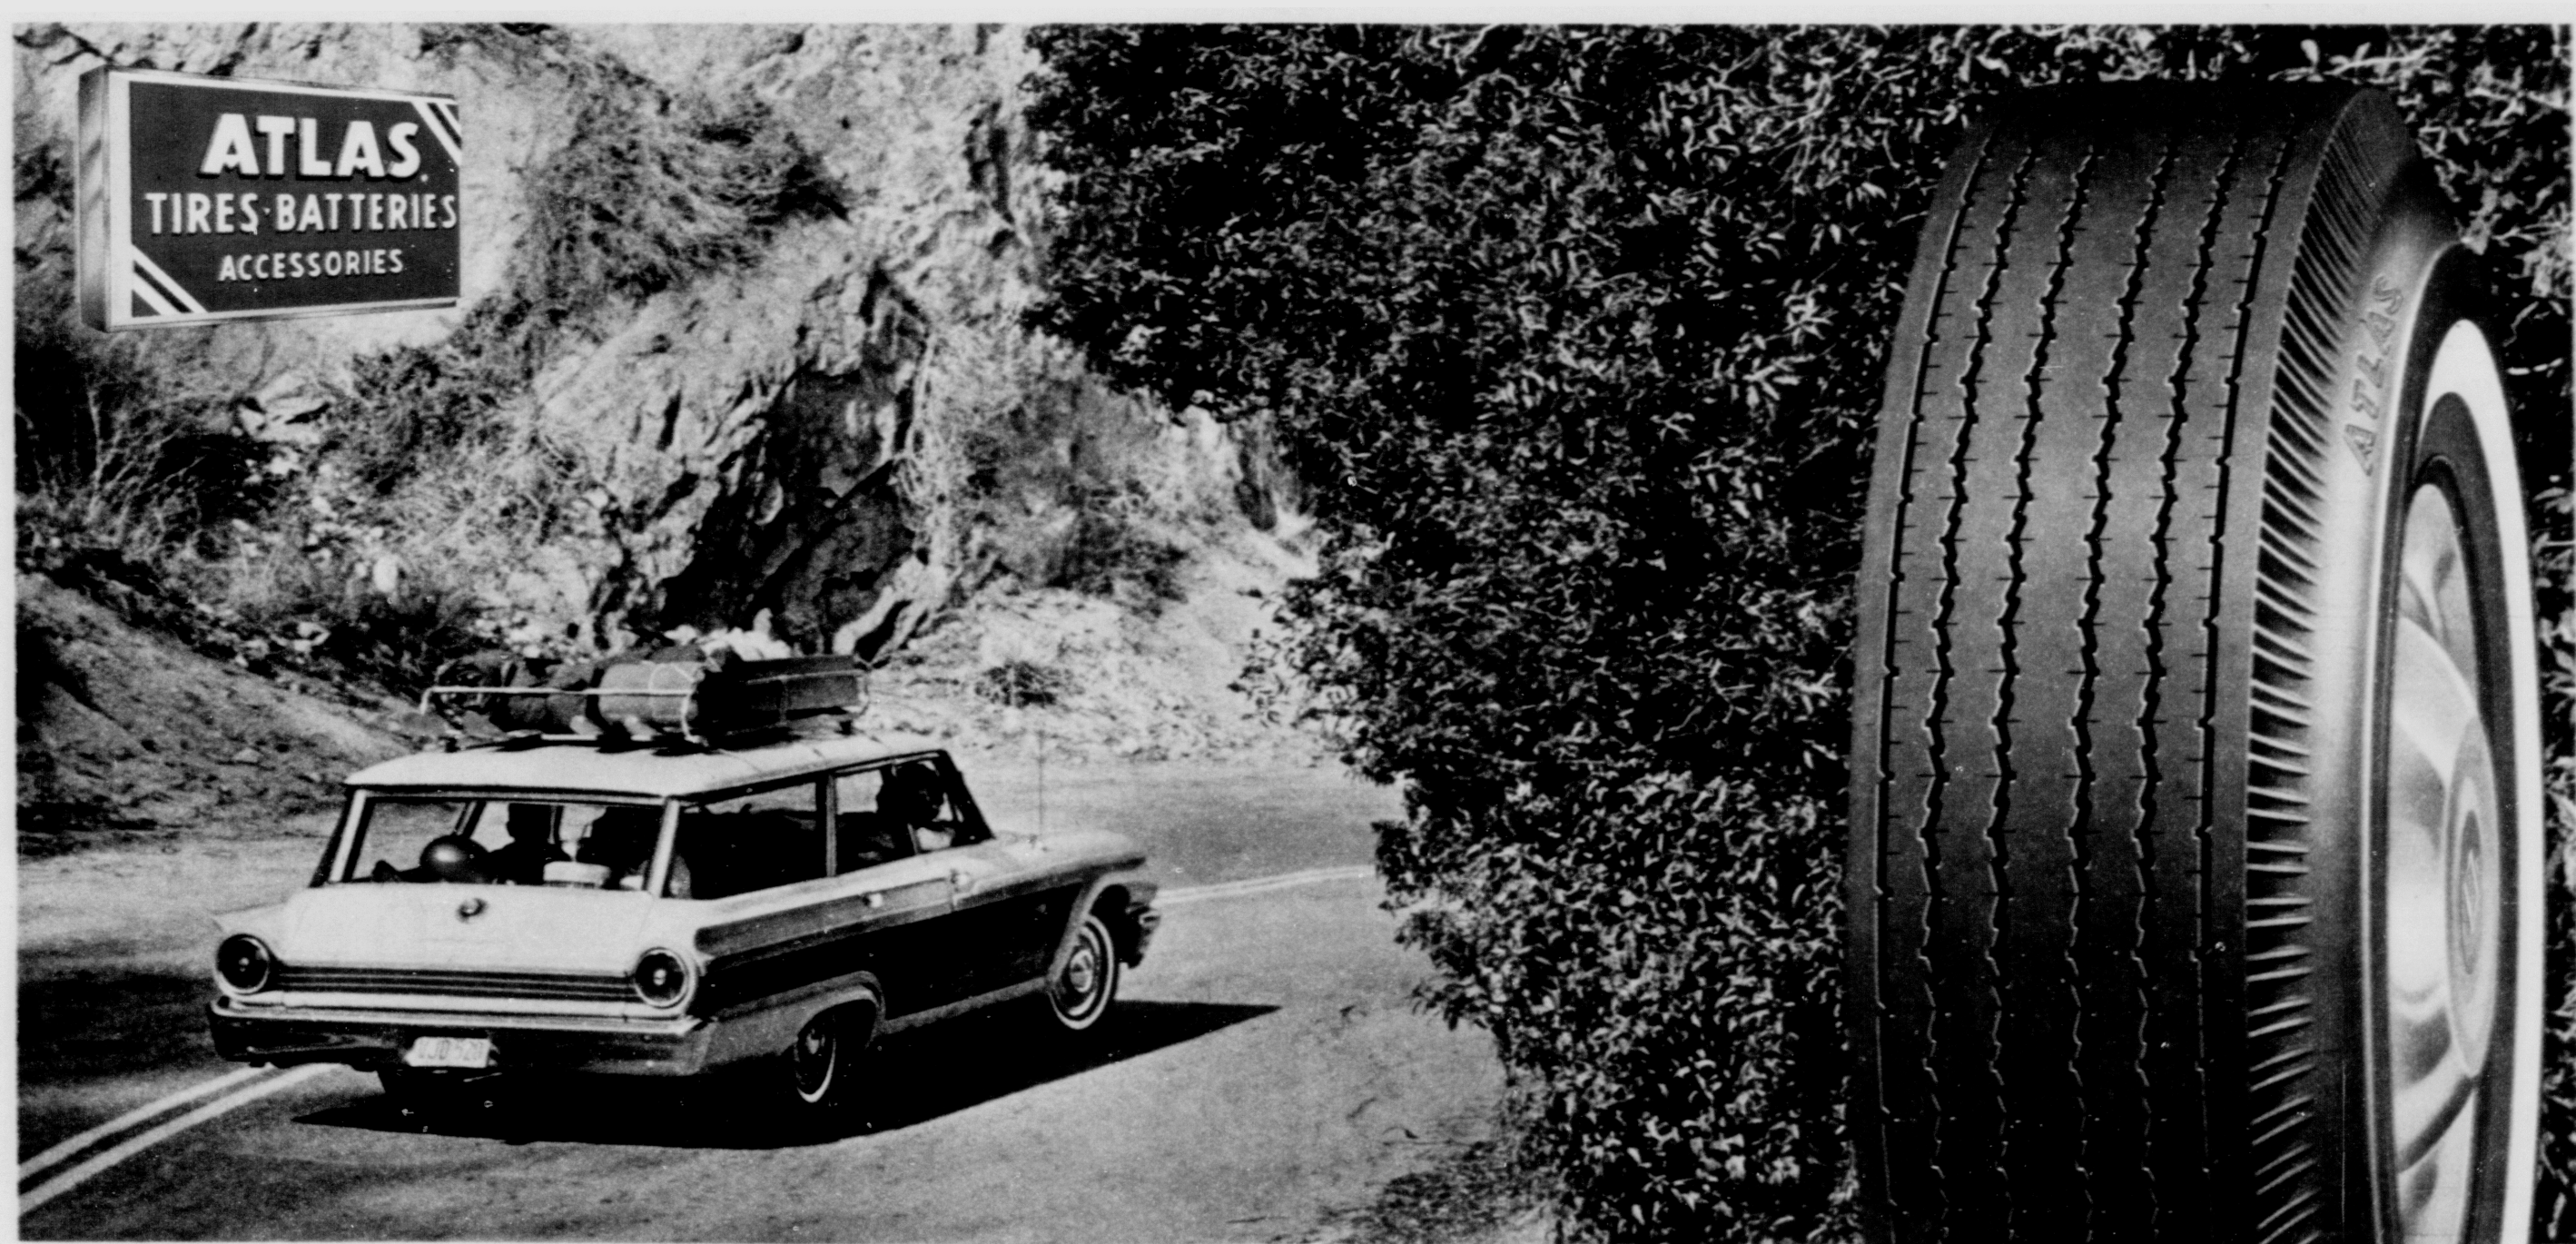

His wife nodded. "This is the first chance I've had to read this book and find out what the bride's mother is supposed to do at the wedding."
